INTRODUCTION.

The great discovery of the Printing Art came a long period before the masses were able to read, and as all innovations are decried by the ignorant, we must not be greatly surprised that a departure from an established custom was very greatly opposed by the major part of the population at that period.

Antique Printing

NORTHUMBERLAND

Reed and Fox,

late R. Besley & Co.
THE dedication of this work being made by the author to the Divine Majesty only, how should we presume to interest a mortal man's patronage in it?

Much less do we think it meet to seek the recommendation of the Muses, for he himself was certain to have been inspired with a far diviner breath than comes from Helicon; the world therefore, shall receive it in that naked simplicity even as he left it, without addition either of support or ornament, more than is included in itself. We leave it perfectly free and unforstalled to every man's judgment, or to the good he shall gain by perusal. Only for the clearing of some passages we thought it not unsuitable to make the common Readers privy to a few particulars of the condition or disposition of the person.

Being nobly born, and endued with eminent gifts of the mind, and having by a good education industry, and labour, attained an unusual height of excellency at Trinity College, Cambridge.
THE admirers and lovers of Charles Lamb (and in his case, more perhaps than in that of any other name in the literary world are these terms synonymous) will, no doubt, hail with peculiar satisfaction this fresh contribution to a full knowledge of his life and genius, emanating, as it does, from a gifted friend, who, at the great age of seventy-seven, records his thoughts and recollections of "Elia." Lamb had his "exceeding great reward" for the renunciation of his hopes, and for all his very anxious care of his afflicted sister, in her unbounded devotion to himself. Wordsworth thus alludes to their attachment in a beautiful tribute to the memory of his friend:—

Our days glide on;
And let him grieve who cannot choose but grieve
That he hath been an Elm without his Vine,
And her bright dower of clustering charities,
That, round his trunk and branches, might have clung.
Enriching and adorning. Unto him
Not so enriched, not so adorned, to him
Was given a sister,
In whom his reason and intelligent heart
Found—for all interests, hopes, and tender cares,
All softening, humanising, hallowing powers,
Whether withheld, or for her sake unsought—
More than sufficient recompense!
Her love
Was as the love of mothers; and when years,
Lifting the boy to man's estate, had called
The long protected to assume the part
Of a protector, the first filial tie
Was undissolved; and, in or out of sight,
Remained imperishably interwoven
With life itself. Thus, 'mid a shifting world,
Did they together testify of time
And seasons' difference—a double tree.

The following passage, taken from Talfourd's "Final Memorials of Lamb," will give the reader some additional insight into the character of brother and sister, showing the peculiar relation in which they stood to each other, and the care and tenderness with which Charles fulfilled the duty he had taken upon himself. Except to a few who were acquainted with the tragical occurrences of Lamb's early life, his peculiarities may be strange—to be forgiven, indeed, to the excellences of his nature and the delicacy of his genius, but still in themselves as much to be wondered at as deplored. The sweetness of his character, breathed through his
THE NATIONAL PROVIDENT INSTITUTION was established in 1835, on the principle of Mutual Assurance, to enable its members to assure their lives at the lowest rate of charge consistent with the security of the Society. By economical management, the careful selection of lives, and introduction of improvements where necessary, this Institution has succeeded in obtaining a large share of the public confidence and support. And, in accordance with the Principle of Mutual Assurance, the entire profits of the business done by this Office belong to and are divided exclusively amongst the Members.

DIVISION OF PROFITS

The Profits are divided every Five Years, and are appropriated, at the option of the Members, either in the shape of a reduction of the future premiums, or a Bonus added to the sum assured. The next division of profits will be made up to the 20th of November, 1867, and the holder of every Policy issued prior to that date will then be entitled to a share in the profits of the five preceeding years. The total amount of profits realised and divided amongst the Members, from the commencement of this Institution in 1835, to the 20th of November, 1862, was £1,227,258 5s. 3d., as is shown by the surpluses declared at the five investigations made to that date. This very large fund has been divided amongst the Policy holders.
EVENING PRAYER.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost. As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, &c.

Then shall be said or sung the Apostles' Creed by the Minister and the People, standing.

I BELIEVE in God the Father Almighty, Maker of Heaven and Earth.
And in Jesus Christ his only Son our Lord: Who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, Born of the Virgin Mary, Suffered under Pontius Pilate, Was crucified, dead, and buried; He descended into Hell; The third day he rose again from the dead; He ascended into Heaven, And sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty; And from thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead.
I believe in the Holy Ghost; The Holy Catholic Church; The Communion of Saints; The forgiveness of Sins; The Resurrection of the Body, And the Life everlasting. Amen.

And after that, these Prayers following, all devoutly kneeling, the Minister first pronouncing with a loud voice.

The Lord be with you; Amen. And with thy Spirit. Minister. Let us pray.
Lord, have mercy upon us. Christ, have mercy upon us. Lord, have mercy upon us.

Then the Minister, Clerk, and People, shall say the第一节 of Prayer with a loud voice.

O UR Father which art in heaven Hallowed be Thy name; Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth, As it is in Heaven: Give us this day our daily bread: And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive us that trespass against us: And lead us not into temptation, But deliver us from evil. Amen.

Then the Priest standing up, shall say: O Lord, shew thy mercy upon us; Amen. And grant us thy salvation; Amen.
Priest. O Lord save the Queen; Amen. And mercifully hear us when we call upon thee.
Priest. Endue thy ministers with righteousness; Amen. And make thy chosen people joyful.
Priest. Give peace in our time, O Lord; Amen. Because there is none other that helpeth us, but only thou, O God. Amen.
Priest. O God, make clean our hearts within us; Amen. And take not thy Holy Spirit from us.

Then shall follow three Collects
—the first of the day: the second for Peace; the third for Aid against all Perils; as here after followeth: which last Collect shall be daily and at Evening Prayer, without alteration.

The second Collect of Evening Prayer.

O GOD from whom all holy desires, all good counsels, and all just works do proceed: Give unto thy servant that peace which the world cannot give: that both our hearts may be set to obey thy commandments, and that also by thee we being defended from the fear of our enemies, may pass our time in rest and in quietness, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The third Collect for Aid against all Perils.

Lighten our darkness, we beseech thee, O Lord: and by thy great mercy defend us from THE ITALY

O GOD we have heard with our ears, and our fathers have declared unto us, the noble works that thou didst in their days, and in the old time before them.

O Lord arise, help us, and deliver us for thine honour.

From our enemies defend us, O Christ.

And graciously look upon our afflictions.

Pitifully behold the sorrows of our hearts.

Mercifully forgive the sins of thy people.

ASCENSION DAY.

The Collect.

GRANT, we beseech thee, Almighty God, that like as we do believe thy only begotten Son our Lord Jesus Christ to have ascended into the heavens: so we may also in heart and mind thither ascend, and with him continually dwell, who liesth and reignest with thee and the Holy Ghost. Amen.

The Epistle. Acts i. 1.

THE former treatise have I made, O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began both to do and teach, until the day in which he was taken up, after that through the Holy Ghost he had given commandments unto the

The capture of Malta had long formed a prominent object to the Mediterranean fleet. Five thousand French troops garrisoned its ports, and rendered hopeless every attempt to reduce it, except by cruel starvation. The Portuguese squadron, under the Marquis de Niza, assisted by such ships as could be spared from the other duties of the fleet, and a small ill-armed force of 1,500 peasants, aided by 500 English and Portuguese marines employed to prevent supplies from reaching the garrison from the land-side, Captain Ball was governor and general, but though he was endeavouring his utmost to recover this island for the king of Sicily, he could obtain little or no help from the court. Had it not been for his energy and abilities, and the love the natives bore towards him, Malta would not, to all appearance, have been captured for years. Men, money, and food were wanting. Nelson in vain endeavoured to obtain men from Minorca or from Russia. Money he now and then forced from the Sicilian court, and gathered food for his little army and the famine-stricken islanders wherever he could. After much persuasion, used with General Fox, who was now the Governor of Minorca, Colonel Graham was ordered to proceed to Malta, at which place he landed on the 10th December, to assist in the siege, but with means much too limited for the service required. Commodore Troubridge had previously received

The Earl of MALMESBURY in moving a vote of thanks to Sir Robert Napier and the officers and men of the Abyssinian army, said that if it was difficult for Sir Robert Napier to find words to do justice to the services rendered by the army it is still more difficult for him (the Earl of Mal- mesbury), who was not present during the recent campaign, and could only judge of them by the despatches of the gallant general, which showed that the use of the pen was as inseparable from the name of Sir R. Napier as the use of the sword. England had, as is the duty of the strong towards the weak, shown the greatest possible forbearance in allowing her subjects to remain in captivity for four or five years before taking any steps to set them free. But at last the conduct of Theodore became intolerable, and last year the government declared that it was absolutely necessary to take measures to chastise this half-educated savage. In that course they were fully supported by the public opinion; and although various objections were started to the expedition, on the ground of the difficulties that must be encountered, these were overruled by the government, who had the fullest confidence in the spirit and energy which the British army has always displayed. No resolution was ever more completely justified by the result. Had Sir Robert Napier been fond of the epigrammatical bombast of an Italian conqueror, instead of being, as he is, one of the most modest of men, he might have said: "Veni, vidi, vici!" so rapid has been his success. The despatch of Lord Stanley declaring war against Abyssinia was only despatched in the April of last year, and in April this year Magdala was taken, and the Emperor

£30,000 Eight per Cent. Debenture Bonds.—The Directors invite SUBSCRIPTIONS for the 130 DEBENTURE BONDS still unallotted. These Bonds are for £100 each and bear interest at eight per cent. per annum, payable on the 1st day of June, and the 1st day of December. The next coupon is payable on the 1st day of December next.

The main system of the Company's Works was permanently opened on the 1st April last, since which date the business of the Company has progressed most satisfactorily. The operations of the first month comprehended the conclusion of contracts with large consumers, the receipts from which alone cover the whole of the Company's working expenses in Spain.

The Towns of Porto Rico, Port St. Mary's, and Puerto Real have applied to the Company for a supply of water, and subsidiary mains have already been laid in the two first-mentioned towns.

The Directors see every reason to endorse the high opinion they have always entertained of the value of this undertaking.

Forms of application may be obtained from the Secretary and any further information desired.

While we leave astronomers to discuss the fine phenomena which marked the transit of Mercury yesterday across the disc of the sun—to tell us all about the mysterious "black drop," and any new facts gathered towards calculating the distance of the centre orb—we must borrow the little planet from them a while for social and general purposes; the day has been when such knowledge might have been borrowed for a political purpose! If the truly wonderful skill with which our philosophers can "time" the celestial bodies had been possessed in ancient ages, the man who foretold therewith a transit or eclipse would have been crowned a king, or elected a high priest, as one in the secrets of Heaven itself. Everybody recognises the prediction as a matter of nice but simple mathematical calculation, and mercury keeps time a great deal more exactly than a London and North Western down express. If we abandon the scientific part of the subject to those whose business is with the stars, we still find it of common interest thus to be reminded of the vaster worlds of existence in which our own orb forms so little and so uninteresting a

Yesterday, the footway of the Thames Embankment, from Westminster Bridge to the Temple was formally opened to public traffic. Killing two birds with one stone, the Board of Works appointed the same day for official inspection of the great Abbey Mills pumping station, the last work in connection with the metropolitan drainage system. No especial celebration was planned here, and belonging members of the Board, with invited friends, at Westminster Bridge, then to walk along the new path, and at the Temple to embark for North Woolwich, from whence they were to go by special train to Abbey Mills. About twelve o'clock, accordingly, three hundred or more gentlemen and ladies were admitted to

A large open-air meeting of cabinet was held last night in Cumberland Market, near Albany-street, Regent's Park, on purpose to decide what course should be taken to induce all the Railway Companies to rescind the rule which restricts the cab trade at the metropolitan stations to the cabs which are specially privileged. This has been a source of serious complaint for a long time on the part of the non-privileged class, who state that it is exceedingly unfair that Railway Companies should be willing for them to bring passengers to the stations but refuse to let them take others away. Some meetings have recently been held, at which most of the masters have attended, and they were unanimously of the opinion that active steps should be taken to induce the Railways to alter the regulation. That the men should have

SHALL we ever fly? Icarus asked himself the question a good many thousand years ago, and was as sanguine about the result as Mr. Stringfellow now appears to be. He fashioned his pinions, and soared aloft; but the wax upon his wings melted, and, falling upon his face, Icarus hurt his nose badly. We are often on the very eve of flying; yet, somehow, we never do fly, except in dreams, and then our aerial excursions are generally brought to a sudden stop by a choking spasm of the nightmare. Simon Magnus fancied he could fly, and the Pagans authorities backed him against the apostles Peter and Paul; but the adventurous Simon fell plump down in the middle of Nero’s Circus and broke all his bones. Hope springs eternal in the human breast, however, and if man is not endowed with wings he is often on the brink of spreading his plumage and launching forth into the empyrean; the beaming enthusiasts of the Aeronautical Society, who are just at the present exhibiting their aerial machines at Sydenham, and airing their crotchets at the Society of Arts, are quite certain that this grand problem will soon find a satisfactory solution. Mr. Thomas Moy, “engineering draughtsman, of Clifford’s Inn,” can give

It was our intention to abstain entirely from commenting on the remarkable trials of which Shoeburyness has lately been the scene, until the whole series had been completed, and until we were in a position to analyse in their entire order the lessons conveyed in the competitive examination instituted between the strength of iron in resisting the impact of heavy projectiles, and its strength as the basis for the projecting force. But for some mysterious reasons, best known to themselves it has seemed good to the War Office authorities to postpone indefinitely, the continuance of these tentative rehearsals; it is possible that if Mr. O’Byrne to-night calls the attention of the House of Commons to the late experiments at Shoeburyness, in reference to the proposed Plymouth Fortifications, he may succeed in eliciting from Sir John Packington whether it is or is not the opinion of the War Office that in its three days trial, the Plymouth Fort target beat the guns that were opposed to it, or that the guns beat the Plymouth Target.

Mr. Surgeant Parry spoke to evidence on part of the plaintiff. He did not, he said, wonder that the defendants did not propose to call witnesses in support of their plea. They charged the plaintiff with fraud, and so it lay upon them to prove that fraud had existed, but they had altogether failed to do so. The plaintiff, against whom the charge was made, had deliberately chosen a tribunal to decide upon the case, which could not fail to detect the fraud if it had existed—a jury of merchants of the City of London. The charge was, that plaintiff had been guilty of gross fraud, but they had the fact before them that he had incurred an enormous expense in prosecuting this action, having had witnesses examined at Brussels, at Vienna, at Trieste, and also at Constantinople. Would he have incurred that heavy expense if he were conscious that his claims were based on fraud. The defendants would not

REED AND FOX (LATE R. BESLEY & CO.), LONDON.

The first conquerors of Europe had their acquisitions to maintain, not only against such of the inhabitants as they had spared but likewise against the more formidable invades of new invaders; self-defence was their chief care, and appears to have been the chief object of their first institutions or policy, instead of the loose associations, which, though they hardly diminished the personal independence, had been sufficient for their security; while they remained in their own countries they saw the necessity for uniting in more close confederacy, and also for relinquishing some of their private rights, so as to gain public safety. Every freeman, on receiving a portion of the land which was divided, bound himself to rise in arms against the enemies of the nation. This military service was the condition on which he received and held his land; and as they were also exempted from all other burdens, that tenure among such a warlike people was deemed at once honourable and easy; the king or general who led them to conquest continuing still to be at the head of the colony, had a large portion allotted to him. Having now acquired the means of rewarding past services, and of gaining new adherents, he parcelled out his lands with this view, binding those on whom he bestowed them to support his standard in case of need with a number of men in proportion to the extent of territory received, and to bear arms in his defence: his chief officers imitating the example set by their sovereign in distributing portions of their own lands among their followers, annexed the same condition to their grant; thus, a feudal kingdom more resembled a military establishment than a civil institution: the victorious army, cantoned in the country which it had conquered, continued ranged.

STOKE NEWINGTON. Charming HOUSE, ten rooms and good garden; high, cheerful, and healthy, with most delightful views. Apply to Mr. Green, Woodberry Villa, near the Manor House, Seven Sisters-road.

SUSSEX, THURSDAY.—At the Chichester corn market yesterday there was a thin attendance of farmers and buyers; the wheat was in moderate supply, but the prices hung on hand, and but little trade was done, notwithstanding a reduction of 1s. to 2s. per quarter. Beans, peas, barley, and oats were unaltered in value; household flour, 2s. to 3s., a sack lower. The quotations were: White wheat, 6s. 3d. to 7s.; mixed ditto, 6s. 6d. to 6s.; red ditto, 7s. to 8s.; beans, 4s. 3d. to 5s.; peas, 4s. 6d. to 4s.; barley, 3s. 6d. to 4s.; oats, 3s. 6d. to 3s. per quarter.

TO LET.—TWO desirable RESIDENCES, south aspect, within fifteen minutes' walk of the centre of the city, and commanding very extensive and beautiful scenery, and overlooking the far-famed river Wye. The situation is decidedly one of the best and most healthy near Hereford; the residences are quite suitable for gentlemen. Each contain drawing, dining, breakfast, parlour, kitchen, and five bed rooms, with dressing rooms to two of the bed rooms in each house; lawn and good garden, and every convenience; they are within two minutes of a fashionable and charming promenade. For particulars apply to Mr. John Lewis, Bromley-hill, Hereford.

The Earl of MALMESBURY in moving a vote of thanks to Sir Robert Napier and the officers and men of the Abyssinian army, said that if it was difficult for Sir Robert Napier to find words to do justice to the services rendered by the army, it is still more difficult for him (the Earl of Malmsbury), who was not present during the recent campaign, and could only judge of them by the despatches of the gallant general, which showed that the use of the pen was the only indispensable form of service to Sir R. The despatch of Lord Stanley declaring war against Abyssinia was only despatched in the April of last year, and in April this year Magdala was taken, and the Emperor Mr. Archibald stated that a summons was only taken against Mr. Robert Widdicombe, as it was not thought necessary to increase the penalties and costs by taking separate summonses against both proprietors, but there was no doubt that both were proprietors of the paper, of which, indeed, the fact of their names appearing in the imprint was evident, and was perfectly understood that the proceedings were virtually taken against the firm. The summons specified two offences relating to a publication of two numbers of the papers on different days.

Mr. Archibald referred to the several Acts of Parliament relating to the stamping and registering of newspapers and publishing of penalties, etc., and more particularly to the 1st William IV. and the 18th Vict. Under the 1st William IV. an important change took place. Previously to that time the amount of security required to be provided by the proprietor of a newspaper was £100, and any breach of the Act was liable to impose a penalty of £200, and the liability was extended to include costs or damages for libel in actions brought by private individuals. The 18th Vict. c. 25, made a material change, and he believed it was upon that Act his learned friend Mr. Macaulay had intended to rely. By that Act it was

The most useful Founts that a Printer can have in his Office are the CLARENDONS; they make a striking Word or Line either in a Hand Bill or Title Page, and do not overwhelm the other lines. They have been made with great care, so that while they are distinct and striking, they possess a very graceful outline, avoiding on one hand the clumsy inelegance of the Antique or Egyptian Character, hitherto in use among Printers, and on the other, the appearance of an ordinary Roman Letter thickened by long use under the machine.

Mechanic, Mechanical a skilled in mechanics, a mean occupation.
Mechanician, a one skilled in the construction of mechanics.
Medal, a an ancient coin, a piece stamped in honour of a victory.
Mediate, to interpose as an equal friend to both parties.
Medicament, s any thing used in healing bruises or wounds.
Mediocrity, a a middle state, or small degree.
Mediterranean, a encircled by land, remote from the sea.
Mellifluent, Mellifluous, a flowing with honey, sweet, eloquent.
Mermaid, a a fabulous sea creature, half woman and half fish.
Mesentry s that membranous part round which the gut convolve.
Metal s a hard compact body, malleable and capable of fusion.
Metaphor, s the application of a word differently from its import.
