Dear Mr. Lupfer:

I am in receipt of your Script Cut Catalog and the script cuts in it are certainly fine.

The criticisms were welcome and at your suggestion I am enclosing something in pure India for the Journal. Should it somehow escape the waste basket, it was my intention to have it reduced one third.

"Parental care" sounds good, but you will undoubtedly want to take it all back after glancing at the enclosed specimens.

Greetings to all the Zanerians.

Sincerely,

A. A. Arenino

Most policies in the Mass. Mutual are written in the above lettering. It is written quite rapidly, about half as fast as ordinary writing, the back-hand being more rapid than the vertical.
The terms finger movement on the one hand, and arm movement on the other hand, are both simple and expressive—much more so than forearm, muscular, or wholearm, and consequently more scientific from either the standpoints of common understanding, etymology, or anatomy.

If I have succeeded in making more clear the relationship existing between the members and movements employed in the actor art of writing, I have then accomplished my desire.

Arrangement in handwriting is more a matter of judgment than of technical skill. Style is but expression of individual taste, and taste is the result of inheritance, environment and education. Handwriting is an index of artistic judgment or indifference to orderliness in arrangement.

Dear Sir:

You've received and noted, I would like to have you call during your visit to Chicago. If you come by the way of St. Paul, there will be no extra expense to you at your hotel in Milwaukee before Chicago. At that time I will talk the matter over thoroughly with you.

From all points of view I'm looking for some good place, but it must be right.

Yours,
