MacKellar, Smiths & Jordan Co.
Nos. 606-614 Sansom Street
Philadelphia, June, 1892.

This Edition of the Compact Specimen Book, which may be called the Twentieth Issue from our Foundry, contains every thing needful for a well-appointed Printing Office, and comprises a complete assortment of Types and Ornaments, all made by us, which, for style, beauty, originality, and durability, cannot be excelled. The portable-ness of the Book enables us to forward it by mail to Printers in distant places who could not otherwise be reached conveniently.

The series of Blain and Fancy Type shown in this Book will be furnished, when desired, upon our old Standard of Bodies, or upon the Point System, as displayed.

Labor-Saving Quotation Furniture.

This Labor-Saving Quotation Furniture is a most desirable and convenient auxiliary in a Printing Office. The pieces are cast in a type-mold, and are finished with the strictest regard to accuracy, so that the Printer who takes pride in the perfection of his work may rely upon them as a most serviceable assistant. It is cast upon the Point System of Bodies.

This article is equally valuable as Furniture for the imposition of forms and as Quotations for blank and rule work, posters, color printing, &c.

The pieces are from 48 to 240 Points in length, and from 24 to 48 Points in width, quadrat height, with suitable spaces. The smallest font weighs 40 pounds. Price per pound, 25 cents.

Labor-Saving
Reversible Metal Furniture.

Fonts, 25, 50, 75 and 100 Pounds. Price, Twenty-Five Cents per Pound.

CAST ON THE POINT SYSTEM OF BODIES.

This Labor-Saving Reversible Metal Furniture is our invention, and is the strongest and most accurate of its class manufactured. It is useful for blanking out and making up forms and for general imposition.

Everywhere Salable and Everywhere Useful

Recent improvements in Delusive Appliances have brought them so near perfection that fugitive Cashiers and fraudulent Debtors may be caught on the wing. Voters entrapped for Office-Seekers, lost Dogs speedily recovered, Subscribers obtained for uninteresting publications, wealthy Simpletons corralled without the use of Stool-Pigeons, Lovers secured for Old Maids, derelict Rebs brought to Port, Recruits rallied around Hingly Aspirants, Monstros or Midgets lured from their native haunts, or Frogs and Fish from the pond at the back door.

Dear Sir:—For many years I have been troubled with Weakness of the Back, and an Indisposition to Work. The symptoms have usually commenced on Monday morning and lasted, without intermission, till the following Saturday night.

If you can prescribe anything which will afford relief, you will receive the lasting gratitude of burdened relatives and needy wife and children.

Yours, languidly,
Gregory Lackthrift.

Gregory Lackthrift, Esq.

Dear Sir:—Having carefully studied the symptoms of your case I have sent a package of fine Elbow Grease, which, if applied diligently, will effect a cure.

This Intelligent Combination of late Improvements is presented for further appreciative consideration. Its tones are of a magnificent singing quality, of marvellous volume, and strong penetrating power, and in perfect sympathy with the human voice, while the wave-like melodies of its softer modulations enchant all by their purity, increasing the delights of home and enhancing the enjoyments of social gatherings.

This Series of a New Style of Script, which we call Spencerian, we present to the attention of Printers in the assured confidence that it will meet with their hearty approval. Its elegant appearance is not its only sufficient recommendation; for, in addition to its beauty, it possesses excellent wearing qualities.

Centennial of Framing and Announcing the Constitution

Grand Celebration in Philadelphia

The Printing Exhibit commenced with a tableau of Gutenberg, his employees and friends, which was illustrated by the German printers of Philadelphia. Type making, as practiced a hundred years ago, was shown by an operator using the old mould which produced ten pounds of unfinished type per day. Near this was the improved casting machine which casts forty pounds of unfinished type in the same time. In contrast with these was the complete type-casting machine which now casts and finishes fifty pounds of type per day.

12 POINT STANDARD TYPE-WRITER.—PICA.

Through the courtesy of the manufacturers of the Remington Standard Type-Writer, we are permitted to present in type (from fac-simile impressions furnished by them) and an exact counterpart of the type-writing of their No. 2 machine.

As the above Type-Writer has the approval of business people in general, and as the number in use far exceeds the those of any other make, the printing craft will doubtless avail itself of the style of type herewith presented as being the latest and correct imitation of the type-writing of that popular machine.

The characters are of a uniform thickness, and but one space is required for justifying. We have designated this face as the 12 Point (Pica) "STANDARD TYPE-WRITER."

This, as well as all of our type productions, is made from the highest known grade of type-metal.

BRADFORD SERIES.

PEARL OLD STYLE, No. 2.

ANDREW BRADFORD, the son of that William Bradford who first printed in Pennsylvania and New York, was born in Philadelphia in the year 1686. It is probable that he derived his Christian name from his maternal grandfather, Andrew Soule, of London, an extensive publisher during the Commonwealth and Restoration. In 1693, when seven years old, he went with his parents to New York, and in that city, in his father's office, he was taught the art with which his name is connected in Pennsylvania. In the early days a classical education was probably not to be obtained in the colonies which now form the Middle States. But, in common with those valuable men who were first born on our soil and record the transitions of its people's birthright from England to America, Bradford received such education as was taught, and it is likely from parental counsel those yet better principles of right conduct which lie at the foundation of character, and to which he owed, in earlier life than is common, such offices of trust and profit as were known in the primitive society of Philadelphia. His handwriting, specimens of which are preserved, indicates nothing like illiteracy. A pamphlet pub.

James Ronaldson, the son of William Ronaldson, was born 1768, at Gorgie, near Edinburgh, and died in the city of Philadelphia in 1842. In 1794 he arrived at Philadelphia, aboard the sailing-vessel Providence. Shortly after his arrival he renewed his acquaintance with Archibald Binny, whom he had previously met when living in Scotland. For a year or two after his arrival in this country, Ronaldson carried on a biscuit bakery. His establishment was destroyed by fire in 1796, so that he found himself out of an occupation. It is related that about this time he encountered Binny in an ale-house; their acquaintance ripened into a friendly intimacy, and they soon learned each other's views and prospects. The result was that a copartnership was formed between them, beginning Nov. 1, 1796, establishing the first permanent type-foundry in this country. Ronaldson contributed the greater portion of the capital, and took charge of the financial part of the enterprise. Binny, who was a practical type-founder, and at one time had carried on the business in Edinburgh, contributed his tools, stock of metal, and types, and assumed control of the mechanical department. The connection proved advantageous to each party, and a prosperous business was the result. American printers, who had up to this time relied on British founders for their type, patronized the new establishment, and, to quote the words of Ronaldson, "the importation of foreign type ceased in proportion as Binny & Ronaldson became known to the printers of the United States." The type-founding tools and material, which Benjamin Franklin had brought with him from France for his own convenience in casting sorts, came into possession of the firm in 1806. After Dr. Franklin's death, they became the property of Mr. Duane, a relative of the philosopher, who justly appreciating the true ardor with which Messrs. Binny & Ronaldson endeavored to succeed, offered them the loan of these tools. After an examination of them by Ronaldson he was so much pleased with the superiority of a number of them over their own, and fearing that Mr. Duane might change his

Twice I received a wholesome castigation
For stealing to the Battery to play
Without parental leave and approbation—
I'll not forget it to my latest day.
I told a rather hesitating story,
Not quite in keeping with my course in youth;
It may have been a crooked allegory,
And did not run in straight lines with the truth.
I bless the rod, and bless the hand that wielded,
Although it made my youthful shoulders tickle.

ANDREW BRADFORD, the son of that William Bradford who first printed in Pennsylvania and New York, was born in Philadelphia in the year 1686. It is probable that he derived his Christian name from his maternal grandfather, Andrew Soule, of London, an extensive publisher during the Commonwealth and Restoration. In 1693, when seven years old, he went with his parents to New York, and in that city, in his father's office, he was taught the art with which his name is connected in Pennsylvania. In the early days a classical education was probably not to be obtained in the colonies which now form the Middle States. But in common with those valuable men who were first born on our soil and record the transitions of its people's birthright from England to America, Bradford received such education as was taught, and it is likely from parental counsel those yet better principles of right conduct which lie at the foundation of character, and to which he owed, in earlier life than is common, such offices of trust and profit as were known in the primitive society of Philadelphia. His handwriting, specimens of which are preserved.

James Ronaldo, the son of William Ronaldo, was born 1768, at Gorgie, near Edinburgh, and died in the city of Philadelphia in 1842. In 1794 he arrived at Philadelphia, aboard the sailing-vessel Providence. Shortly after his arrival he renewed his acquaintance with Archibald Binny, whom he had formerly met when living in Scotland. For a year or two after his arrival in this country Ronaldo carried on a biscuit bakery. His establishment was destroyed by fire in 1796, so that he found himself out of an occupation. It is related that about this time he encountered Binny in an ale-house; their acquaintance ripened into a friendly intimacy, and they soon learned each other's views and prospects. The result was that a copartnership was formed between them, beginning Nov. 1, 1796, establishing the first permanent type-foundry in this country. Ronaldo contributed the greater portion of the capital, and took charge of the financial part of the enterprise. Binny, who was a practical type-founder, and at one time had carried on the business at Edinburgh, contributed his tools, stock of metal, and types, and assumed control of the mechanism. The connection proved advantageous to each party, and a prosperous business was the result. American printers, who had up to this time relied on British founders for their type, patronized the new establishment, and, to quote the words of Ronaldo, "the importation of foreign type ceased in proportion as Binny & Ronaldo became known to the printers of the United States. The type-founding tools and material, which Benjamin Franklin had brought with him from France for his own convenience in casting sorts, came into possession of the firm in 1806. After Dr. Franklin's death, they became the property of Mr. Duane, a relative of the philosopher, who, justly appreciating the true ardor with which Messrs. Binny & Ronaldo endeavored to succeed, offered them the loan of these tools. After an examination of them by Ronaldo he was so much pleased with the superiority of a number of them over their own, and fearing that Mr. Duane might change his

For stealing to the Battery to play
Without parental leave and approbation—
I'll not forget it to my latest day.
I told a rather hesitating story,
Not quite in keeping with my course in youth;
It may have been a crooked allegory,
And did not run in straight lines with the truth.
I bless the rod, and bless the hand that wielded,
Although it made my youthful shoulders tickle.

A younger five years old asked himself the question, "Shall I be as happy at twenty-one as I am now?" He was the son of Archibald and Harriet MacKellar, born in New York, August 12, 1812, and his name was Thomas. Nine years after, May, 1826, found Thomas in the printing office of the New York Spy. His education had been interrupted by his father's misfortunes; and Thomas left McGowan's Classical Academy the highest boy of his class in mathematical studies, and with a strong aversion to all poetry except Cowper's John Gilpin. During his first day in the Spy office he learned the cases and set four stickfuls of Brevier and laid a font of job type. He was so elated that he leaped over every stoop and cellar-door on his way home. The proprietor-editor worked beside Thomas, and often set up his editorials off-hand without writing them, and the lad in some measure imitated his master. The Spy lived about two years; and in 1828 the younger entered the printing office of J. & J. Harper, in Cliff Street, where he was soon noted for the neatness and extreme accuracy of his work, and in his seventeenth year he was made proofreader. His father and mother both died a year after, and he became guardian to his younger brothers and sisters. The boys in Harpers' composing-room had a sort of bulletin-board fastened to a post, whereon such of them as were literarily-inclined posted original pieces of prose or rhyme. Old Mr. Thomas, a well-known printer in the office, after reading one of young MacKellar's pieces, said, gruffly, "Well, Tom will come to something some day." John Harper, very sedate, was the financial man of the house: James, witty and fond of jesting, the press-room and business superintendent; while J. Wesley Harper, a combination of the two elder brothers, was foreman of the composing-room. Fletcher, the youngest, and who afterward became the chief man, did not at that time have any well-defined position, other than to make himself generally useful and to keep apprentices in order. Altogether, they formed an admirable combination. In those days the Experience proves that the apprentice foreshadows the workman, just as surely as the bend of the twig foreshadows the formation of the tree. The upright, obedient, industrious lad will graduate a steady, skilful, and capable man; as unmistakably as the perversive, illing, careless boy will ripen into a lazy, dissolute fellow. The fact is, a boy is measurably the maker of his own destiny; and if he fails to acquire a master-knowledge of the trade to which he is put, it will mainly be because he did not at his outset determine to be a master-workman. Good morals and steady industry are indispensable. When a lad who possesses these qualities proposes to learn the art and mystery of printing, it should be inquired of him, Has he had a fair common-school education? Is he a perfect speller? Has he a turn for reading? Is his upright good? Is he under fifteen years of age? A true affirmative answer to all these queries will entitle him to the position of reading and errand boy. He is told the hours at which he is to come and go, and a strict punctuality is enjoined upon him. Experience proves that the apprentice foreshadows the workman, just as surely as the bend of the twig foretells the inclination of the tree. The upright, obedient, industrious lad will graduate a steady, skilful, and capable man, as unmistakably as the perverse, idling, careless boy will ripen into a lazy, dissolute fellow. The fact is, a boy is measurably the maker of his own destiny; and if he fails to acquire a master-knowledge of the trade to which he is put, it will mainly be because he did not at his outset determine to be a master-workman. Good morals and steady industry are indispensable. When a lad who possesses these qualities proposes to learn the art and mystery of printing, it should be inquired of him, has he had a fair common-school education? Is he a perfect speller? Has he a turn for reading? Is his eyesight good? Is he under fifteen years of age? A true affirmative answer to all these queries will entitle him to the position of reading and errand boy. He is told the hours at which he is to come and go, and a strict punctuality is enjoined upon him. He sweeps the room,—he sorts out the pi,—he learns the position of the various letters in the case. A year spent in this way is an excellent preparative for "going to case," or learning the art of composing type. When he is put to composition, he is told to set up one line and show it to the foreman or to the journeyman under whose care he may be placed. The errors in the line are pointed out to him, and he is required to correct them himself. When the words are perfectly correct, he justifies the line tight enough to prevent it from falling down when the composing-stick is slightly inclined, and yet sufficiently loose to enable him to lift it

The upright, obedient, industrious lad will graduate a steady, skilful, and capable man, as unmistakably as the perverse, idling, careless boy will ripen into a lazy, dissolute fellow. The fact is, a boy is measurably the maker of his own destiny; and if he fails to acquire a master-knowledge of the trade to which he is put, it will mainly be because he did not at his outset determine to be a master-workman. Good morals and steady industry are indispensable. When a lad who possesses these qualities proposes to learn the art and mystery of printing, it should be inquired of him, has he a fair common-school education? Is he a perfect speller? Is he under fifteen years of age? A true affirmative answer to all these queries will entitle him to the position of reading and errand boy. He is told the hours at which he is to come and go, and a strict punctuality is enjoined upon him. He sweeps the room,—he sorts out the pi,—he learns the position of the various letters in the case. A year spent in this way is an excellent preparatory for "going to case," or learning the art of composing type. When he is put to composition, he is told to set up one line and show it to the foreman or to the journeyman under whose care he may be placed. The errors in the line are pointed out to him, and he is required to correct them himself. When the words are perfectly correct, he justifies the line tight enough to prevent it from falling down when the composing-stick is slightly inclined, and yet sufficiently loose to enable him to lift it out with ease. In thus spacing out the line, the blanks between the words must be so graduated that, when the matter is printed, all the words will appear at equal distances apart. This is a unique and handy type, that may be used, not only for regular display lines, but more than half of the letters are so slotted or mortised on the sides as to admit of the insertion of types of smaller bodies, thus producing novel and striking effects, which are heightened by the aid of the extension ornaments.

The letters C, E, F, L, Q and T, are made each in two distinct widths.

The font is complete with points and figures.

American Point System of Type Bodies.

Based on our Pica body. One point = one-twelfth of Pica.

To the intelligent printer the advantages of the American Point System are too apparent to need explanation. In ordering, designate the size of the body by the number of Points. The bodies indicated by heavy type conform to the Old System and the American Point System. Printers having type manufactured by us upon these bodies will require no change in them in adopting the Point System.
